Current Comment

By R. H. K.

The opinions (if any) expressed herein, are not necessarily those of The Campbell Press.

I see by the papers that our local chamber of commerce has dragged out the old question of incorporation for its annual dusting off, complete with reports of costs of municipal government in nearby small towns. This proposition was, if I remember correctly, gone into pretty thoroughly several years ago and, though comparative costs indicated the plan was feasible, the opinion of the majority consolidated to nip incorporation in the bud. It appears to this writer, after a brief look around, that conditions today are little if any more auspicious than they were at that time. Incorporation has some advantages, and yours truly would be the last person in the world to stand in its way, but for two reasons: (1) the time is not yet ripe—in other words, most residents don't want it; (2) there is altogether too much street work to be done within the limits of what would naturally be our corporate area for a young and struggling municipality — and we'd be that without question—to handle with anything like efficiency, to say nothing of the expense. The latter item would not be inconsiderable. Good judgment, then, seems to point down the road of temporary abandonment of the idea—at least until the matter of local streets and roads is whipped into much better shape than it is at present.

Such postponement, however, would not in the least hinder us from getting together on the formation of a police district right now. Conclusive action along this line would fill a vital need which, coupled with improved street lighting, our sanitary, school, and fire districts, would put Campbell on a par with many small towns which enjoy the advantages of incorporation. The constant arrival in and departure of transients from Campbell, during the past several years particularly, has increased the burden on local police—understaffed and underpaid at best—because it is increasingly difficult to separate the wheat from the chaff when the sheaves are on the move. I do not mean to imply that "transients" are more doubtful characters because they are transients (there are some mightly fine people among them), but I do mean to imply that it is more difficult to keep track of the undesirable transient than it is to keep track of the definitely local hooligans. And we have plenty of those, too. Any way you look at it, the need for more adequate (I should say more complete) police service is apparent, and why can't we have a vote on it?

The Press notes with pleasure the appointment of Frank Steindorf, Jr. to the new prune growers program committee of the state advisory prorate commission. Frank has accomplished much that is useful to growers throughout the state, and is intensely active in all sound and progressive movements leading to cooperation among the many members of an important, basic industry of the state generally, and the Santa Clara valley particularly.

Steindorf On Prune Program Committee

A meeting of state advisory prorate commission was held Tuesday in Sacramento and a newly appointed program committee for the state prune growers was named. The commission selected seven prune growers for this committee from 35 nominees presented by each of seven districts in zone No. 1, including the whole state.

For district5, Lewis Armstrong of Los Gatos and Frank Stiendorf, Jr. of Campbell were chosen. This district includes Alameda, and the north and east portions of Santa Clara county.

Steindorf is connected with Sunsweet plant No. 1 and is on the central committee of the Prune and Apricot Growers association and has been active in the interests of the growers. He recently spoke before a representative group of growers interested in the prorate program at the Franklin school.

This is a reduction of $100 from the goal set last year, but which was not subscribed. The change has been made in the local relief amount, as the state and county have taken over much more of the care of the needy.

Agostinho is busily arranging for the coming campaign which will get under way as soon as plans are completed and solicitors arranged for all sections.

Clendening, whose birthday this happened to be, the outgoing president, Mrs. Rose Hanger and Mrs. R. Y. Maxon, the incoming president, with other officers of the club.

The tables were bright with autumn flowers and the affair was very enjoyable.

A short business meeting followed the refreshments and the rest of the afternoon was spent in a social manner.

Past Presidents Honored At Club Luncheon

Past presidents of the Country Woman's club were honored guests at the first meeting of the year. The luncheon meeting, an annual affair, was held Monday, Sept. 23, at the clubroom.

Past presidents in attendance were: Mrs. E. I. Price, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, Mrs. L. J. Carboni, Mrs. M. E. Purmort, Mrs. H. C. Smith, Mrs. F. L. Howes, Mrs. R. H. Hyde and Mrs. D. H. Cramer.

President Evelyn Morgan welcomed the members and introduced the chairman of the day, Mrs. L. J. Carboni. Mrs. Carboni called upon each past president to speak a few words concerning her term of office, and read a message from Mrs. Ralston Alison who was unable to attend.

Miss Gladys Harvey spoke upon the philosophy of the Orient. Miss Harvey is an instructor in the adult education department in San Jose. She has specialized in oriental arts and cultures. In her talk, Miss Harvey emphasized that the people of the western world can learn much from a study of eastern philosophies. Her talk showed that certain phases of the philosophies of Buddha and Confucius could well be applied to modern world conditions. Miss Harvey illustrated her talk with oriental objects of art which she has collected. This first lecture of the year has served very well as a basis for further study of the club's program for the year," What Influence Has Eastern Culture on the Western World?"

Katharine Wood supplied the musical program for the afternoon. Miss Wood is an accomplished pianist and delighted the members by her interpretation of two oriental numbers, "Rush Hour in Hong Kong" (Chasins) and "Toccato" (Ravel).

The clubrooms were made most attractive and gay by the use of many bouquets of lovely fall flowers. Since the theme for the club year is to be oriental in nature, the table decorations were carried out in that theme. Bamboo mats were used as the basis for flat bouquets of magnolia leaves, hydrangeas and tuberous begonias and coxcomb. Hand painted place cards also were oriental in motif. Mrs. C. G. Simonds was in charge of decorations with Mrs. J. B. Collins, Mrs. I. R. Abbott, Mrs. M. E. Purmort and Mrs. L. J. Carboni assisting.

The board of directors of the club prepared and served the tasty luncheon. Members of the board are: Mrs. W. R. Morgan, Mrs. G. E. Jeffers, Mrs. W. H. Van Dyke, Mrs. Sue Boyce, Mrs. E. I. Farnham, Mrs. H. J. Smith, Miss Jessie Lewis, Mrs. J. D. Blaine and Mrs. J. O. Leverton.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Oct. 7 in the clubrooms. The topic of the day will be "Symbols —Myths of the Far East.

NEWSPAPER WEEK

The celebration of National Newspaper Week, October 1 to 8, calling attention to the vital role a free press plays, is a sound idea.

What could be more tragic than for us to sit back complacently in the thought that freedom of the press is somehow God-given and eternal? Nothing could be farther from the truth. Ask the John Does in the dictator-controlled lands who must daily read—if they care to read at all—newsless newspapers, pre-digested pap prepared by government censors, giving them, if at all, only such vague glimmerings of the truth as it pleases their masters.

Enlightened opinion, achieved by a full and generous circulation of news, views, criticism and opinions, is as needful to sustain the health of democracy as sunlight is to sustain life. That conviction is one which, to a greater or lesser degree, is shared by all citizens —and with good reason. Its roots are sunk deep in America's past, for it was more than two centuries ago that the first great battle of the freedom of the press was decisively won in America. On August 4, 1735, John Peter Zenger, publisher of the New York Weekly Journal, was hailed into court on a charge of libel because he had dared to criticize the governor's administration! The jury in the case rendered, perhaps unknowingly, a momentous decision in the history of a free press when it declared the publisher acquitted.

We find it a little incredible now to think of a man being arrested for criticizing government policy, yet we know from the disastrous course of events abroad, the right of the press to speak freely only survives while nations are free. But National Newspaper Week is a welcome reminder of another truth —a free press is a powerful force in keeping nations strong and free.

NOTE TO POLITICIANS

In a report to the American Psychological association, Dr J. E. Janney of Cleveland college discloses the results of an opinion poll taken among several hundred job-holders and relief clients. Put briefly, and minus numerical details, they boil down to the fact that the reliefers, who know Mother Hubbard's cupboard as well as they know their own name, are optimistic no end about their chances of getting jobs in private employment in the near future But the job-holders are of a different turn of mind. Looking with melancholy eye on the present state of affairs,they see little or no hope of prying clients from relief rolls and giving them real jobs in the near future. If there's any moral here, it's for "promising" candidates seeking the relief vote: "Don't promise bigger relief funds. Promise to return private enterprise to full vigor to s upply those jobs the majority of relief clients are counting on!

Balloting on the issues of conscripting the nation's wealth and man-power, 2400 students of the University of California voted by large majority in favor of both, with more than 1400 ayes to some 600 noes, and 325 students unable to make up their minds at all. It's those 325 that arouse our interest Their frankness is commendable. Their indecision is understandable. But if their indecision was born of indifference, that's regrettable. A nation can thrive on dissent but indifference can kill it.

IT'S THE ARMY'S JOB!

With the registration of some 16,500,000 men between the ages of 21 and 35 on October 16, America gets down to girding for defense in earnest.

From that number some 400,000 will be selected for service by January 1 which, with 375,000 regulars, and 240,000 National Guardsmen called up for special training, will give the United States a total of one million men under arms at the first of the year

Since the momentous decision in favor of peace-time conscription has been made by Congress and the people to defend this nation against the hazards of a war-frenzied world, it is now up to the Army to provide the realistic training which will ensure that defense. Warfare in 1940 has become a matter of science, engineering, and technical skill. Training ni 1940 must be adapted to meet it. Nothing less will do. Close order drill and parade formations, though beautiful to look at, are as irrelevant to the critical needs of modern defense as the long bow and javelin of medieval times.

The billions of new defense funds should provide the machines and equipment for the practical, realistic education of America's new Army. Those billions should speedily obviate such fantastic conditions as that reported in a recent press despatch, announcing West Point could boast 350 elegant riding horses—but not a single tank!

The people of this country who, by a large majority, believe America should wake up and look to her safety in a world rampant with the spirit of aggression, are gladly sacrificing to equip this nation with military might second to none. But they have a right to demand that training for defense be clear-sighed and realistic, and not centered on the antiquated routines of traditional military practice. The people have asked for preparedness and provided the men. Now it is the Army's turn to discharge its responsibility

32 MILLION REPORT CARDS

We would say that the American dream of free education for everyone is showing signs of having become practically a reality

From the United States Office of Education comes the report—and a pleasantly startling one it is—that fully one-fourth of the people in this country are today in attendance at schools or some institution of learning.

Naturally, the bulk of our stupendous school-going population of some 32,285,000 is found in the elementary schools. They are dispensing the three R's to 21,550,000 students, with high schools following second with 7,160,000. Approximately one and a half million are in colleges, with nearly two million registered in evening schools and part-time courses.

That last figure is particularly significant, for its numbers are practically all made up of adults who, with equal zest and far more conscientiousness, scoff at the silly notion that you can't teach older gray cells new tricks. Many of these persons are, in fact, acquiring new trades, new skills in the night schools, or brushing up on new wrinkles in trades and arts they had learned some years ago. This zeal for improvement, for keeping abreast of the times, for acquiring new aptitudes to match the new demands of industry and enterprise, is a fine and healthy sign.

To this great post-'teen age student body, as well as to their younger colleagues, we say, "More power to you!" The nation's schools, training the hearts and minds of one-fourth the nation, are now, as never before, performing a high service in the defense of democracy.

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Clear the decks; man the guns—and stand by for action!

That, in effect, was the command which rang out in both Republican and Democratic headquarters in California this week in the wake of the party convention at Sacramento and Wendell Willkie's spectacular state tour.

Both sides, it can now be stated emphatically, look upon California as a pivotal state in the battle of the presidency. And neither side has any idea of giving up the ship without a fight to the finish.

There is a growing conviction on every hand—possibly inspired by Mr. Willkie's forthright and aggressive bid for.. the.. state's.. support—that California's 22 electoral votes may again decide the destiny of the nation, as they did in the memorable Wilson-Hughes contest in 1916.

And with New York, according to most reliable polls, wavering between Roosevelt and Willkie, party leaders in the east, as well as here, are alert for any sign of a switch in sentiment in California.

Willkie's California tour, staged under the joint auspices of the Willkie volunteers and the Republican State committe, became almost a triumphal procession in some sections—and not only put heart into his followers, but prodded Mr. Roosevelt's leaders into the realization that this state, long considered a New Deal stronghold, is teetering.

Apart from partisan politics, Mr. Willkie proved, to his audiences in California, that Mr. Roosevelt has no corner on what Hollywood would call glamour. The personal magnetism of the burly man who rode the blind baggage, followed the fruit, washed dishes in a restaurant, worked in steel mills, fought overseas, taught school, practiced law, and climbed the American ladder of success the hard way—reached right down into the crowds and took them. He was a colorful campaigner—a man with an unruly shock of hair, which was constantly swishing back and forth in front of his eyes as he bore in and drove home his point; a powerful fellow, careless of dress, easy of manner. But he was a man with a message, a man of battle, fighting for what he believes is best for America. That impression was undeniable.

Mr. Willkie may not have decided how California will go in November by his four days of barnstorming here. But at least he made Calfornia a hotly debated battleground.

The Rev. and Mrs. John Brunswick, Mrs. C. C. Byrnes Mrs. Rose Hanger, Miss Eva Mitchell, Mrs. O. J. Nicholls, Tom and David Farley and Bob Adamson represented the local Methodist church at a sub-district meeting of the church school workers and young people's leaders at the Centella Methodist church in San Jose on Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Rally Sunday At Cong'l Church

Rally Sunday at the Congregational church found a large body of worshippers ready for the start. At 11 a. m. a well filled church had the joy of seeing a number of awards in the form of Bibles and books given to the children in the Sunday school whose attendance during the summer was over 70 per cent.

Edwin Parker has joined the teaching faculty as a boys class teacher. Miss Dorothy Merriman is superintendent of the general school; Miss Elizabeth Howes is secretary; Dixie Keesaman, assistant secretary with other special duties; Miss Edith Hughes, pianist; Mrs. Ray Wood, Miss Hancie Naylor, Miss Edith Hughes and Rev. Bennett, teaching in the general school.

The beginners and primary departments are in flourishing condition with a growing number of children. Miss Gladys Merriman is superintendent, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Bennett. Miss Elaine Jeffers is pianist and Miss Lenore Du Bois and Miss Ernestine Fahler, assistant teachers.

For the year 1940-41 a very interesting system of attendance and religious knowledge competition has been worked out. New friends to this town are cordially invited to send their children and young people, if they are not already settled.

The youth program at 6:30 p. m. is also well on its way. The college group leader is Dennis Bennett; high school group, Dorothy Merriman; junior high group, Hancie Naylor; junior group, Gladys Merriman and Mrs. Helen Garner. The Rev. J. H. Bennett is the advisor for all groups.

Mrs. Herbert Kelly and son of San Francisco, and Mrs. Glen McCoy and son of Burbank were visitors in Campbell today.

American Boy Is Companion To Thousands

Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine.

"It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum," writes one high school senior. "THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school basketball team because of playing tips in THE AMERICAN BOY."

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine . Virtually every issue offers advice from a famous coach or player. Football, basketball ,track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles.

Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys' clubs also recommend THE AMERICAN BOY enthusiastically. They have found that as a general rule regular readers of THE AMERICAN BOY advance more rapidly and develop more worthwhile characteristics than do boys who do not read it.

Trained writers and artists, famous coaches and athletes, explorers, scientists and men successful in business and industry join with an experienced staff to produce in THE AMERICAN BOY, the sort of reading matter boys like best.

THE AMERICAN BOY sells on most newsstands at 25c a copy. Subscription prices are $2.00 for one year or $3.50 for three years. Foreign and Canadian rates 50c a year extra. To subscribe simply send your name, address and remittance direct to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

The months just ahead, due to the government's tremendous defense program—and the impact of that program on every branch of production activity—will be of vital consequence to California agriculture.

What the ultimate effect will be on the farming industry, no one can predict. But the immediate effect, in all probability, will be to strengthen markets and boost prices.

Dependent on how fast the defense program gathers speed, industry is slated to take on between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 workers by next July, according to Washington economists.

And the conscription and National Guard mobilization programs are scheduled to take more than 1,000,000 additional men out of the labor market during this period.

Reports from the government experts also indicate that if prices remain unchanged, the national income, which totaled $71,700,000,000 during the last fiscal year, should reach $78,000,000,000 during the fiscal year which ends next June 30. And if prices go up, the figure may shoot considerably above $80,000,000,000.

Incidentally, the Washington economists admit that a rise of 5 per cent in the cost of goods by next June is almost inevitable. And if business men, fearing industrial bottlenecks which might delay deliveries, start laying in huge supplies of things they expect to need in the future, a 15 per cent increase in prices, or more, would doubtless result.

Many unknown factors can, of course, affect what will happen during the next year. But even the capitulation of Britain, it is believed by federal officials, would not prevent a big spurt in American industry—and in the demand for produce and goods. This statement is based on the assumption that any business the United States might lose by the surrender of Britain and cancellation of her orders for American planes and armaments, would be more than offset by increases in the demands of this nation's defense production schedule.

The budget bureau in Washington estimates that defense expenditures, during this fiscal year, in addition to normal costs of the armed forces, will total $5,000,000,000. And if defense costs soar to that figure, total federal expenditures for the year are expected to hit $12,100,000,000!

A restraining influence on the "defense boom," however, it is generally admitted, will be the rise in taxes. When people spend more for taxes, they must, inevitably, spend less on things bought for the families. In this fiscal year alone, more than $700,000,000 was added to the federal tax bill and another addition of at least $200,000,000 is slated in the proposed excess profits tax.

Washington reports also mention the threat of a possible car shortage (somewhat reminiscent of World War days), stating that unless more are built, freight cars are expected to fall 100,000 short of requirements by next fall.

The Association of American Railroads disputes that contention, however, stating: "American railroads are ready, right now, to do their part, and more, in any national emergency. That's because railroad preparedness (the modernization of plant and methods) began 20 years ago. American railroads are at the highest peak in their history in speed and operating efficiency. As compared with 1920, the average car has 17 per cent more capacity; the average locomotive has 44 per cent more pulling power, and the average freight train travels 64 per cent faster."

Farmers, preparing for the swift changes that are inevitable, will do well to remember the lessons of the World War. There may be immediate profits to be made from a "defense boom," but farmers will do well to keep their heads and not rush into expansion programs unjustified by normal conditions.

TO CONDUCT NURSERY

The Sigma Sigma group of the Congregational church has arranged to conduct a nursery at the church, Sunday mornings so that parents may attend the service. Toys and amusements will be provided and the children will be well cared for.

Any parents whether church members or not who desire to attend morning service may leave their little folks in the Sunday school room a little before 11 a. m.

Purmorts Enjoy Vacation Trip

The Mark Purmorts returned Friday to their Winchester road home after an enjoyable vacation trip of eight days.

Mr. and Mrs. Purmort drove up to the Trinity river where three days were spent camping, and then the journey was continued to Mt. Lassen and to Lassen park, where the entire region was completely taken over by deer hunters.

In one camp they encountered Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pope and their son Louis and wife. Louis was the only one of 11 nimrods who brought in a deer. The Pope family were former residents of Campbell.

The leisurely trip was continued south to Lake Almanor and along the Feather river, visiting Quincy and then turning south east to Reno. A trip to lovely Pyramid Lake, north of Reno was a memorable part of the journey. Everything was lovely, although at some time during every day but the last it rained and in some of the higher altitudes rain is rain.
